has been made results from a combination of several factors. Aggregate across the envelope receipts for the year were about $140, nod means death, 000,000 greater than originally estimated God bless you."

"Customs receipts proved to be larger than for any previous fiscal year in the history of the government, and amounted to $356,443,278.18 as compared with the estimate of $275,000,000.

Thirty minutes later two-thirds of Pickett's men lay dead in front of Cemetery Hill. The battle of Gettystamounted to $356,443,278.18 as compared with the estimate of $275,000,000.

But to-day Longstreet's phantom $3.213.253,256.79, or almost exactly the estimated $3.214,500,000. Miscellaneous revenues, including Panama Canal tolls, amounted to $539,407,506.97 as ompared with an estimated $478,953. of harge: "General I soldier all my life. increased realization on property and soldiers engaged in fights by couples, securities and the sale of about $44,- by squads, companies, regiments, divisions of Federal Land Bank bonds sions and armies and should know as

"Total expenditures on the other hand were almost $200,000,000 less than the estimates given last December in the budget, due largely to decreased expenditures on account of the railroads and to unexpectedly large realization upon railroad obligations held by the government, including particularly, equipment trust notes.

It is my opinion that no 15,000 men over arrayed for battle can take Cemetery Hill:

In reply General Lee orders Pickett's charge, saying, as he points to Cemetery Hill:

"The enemy is there and I am going to strike him."

Pickett's glorious command marched again to-day jauntily over the summer fields of Pennsylvania toward heights

Gross Debt Now 23 Billions The total gross debt of the United ates on June 30, 1922, on the basis daily Treasury statements, amounted to $22,963,381,708.31, as compared with $23,977,450,552.54 on June 30, 1921, a reduction during the fiscal year 1922 of $1,014,068,844.23. This reduction in fund and other public debt expenditures chargeable to ordinary receipts; second, in the amount of $277.572.593.13, through the reduction in the the amount of $313,801,651.10, on account of the above described surplus of ordinary receipts over total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts.

of ordinary receipts over total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts.

"The preliminary statement of the Jublic debt on June 30, 1922, also reflects the results of the refunding operations which the Treasury has been carrying on during the last year or more. The outstanding Victory notes on June 30, 1922, had been reduced to $1,991,183,400, as compared with $3,913,933,200 on June 30, 1921, while the outstanding Treasury notes by June 30, 1922, had increased to $2,246,596,350, as compared with $311,191,600 on June 30, 1921.

"Treasury certificates of indebtedness were reduced during the year to $1,828,787,500, as compared with $2,699,572,950 on June 30, 1921. As appears from this preliminary statement, however, there remains almost $4,500,000,000 of debt maturing within the fiscal year 1923, most of which will have to be refunded during the year This total is made up of the following items: Four and three-quarter percent Victory notes, $1,991,183,400; Treasury certificates, $1,828,887,500; war savings securities, series of 1918, maturing January 1, 1923, in the amount of about $625,000,000."

There were Jim Prendergast, lumber dealer; Jack Crissinger, lawyer and now Comptroller of the Currency; Hoke Donithern, lawyer and Marion's sole delegate to the national convention that nominated Harding; Colonel George Christian sr., father of the President's secretary; "Ging" Schrader, steam shovel manufacturer, and several others.

The homecoming of the President will make of Marion's centennial celebration, which got under way to-day, a national event. Marion to-day is almost a suburb of Washington, for other distinguished Marionites from the national capital also are coming home.

Preparations for the reception of the President are completed at the home of Dr. G. T. Harding sr., his father, where he and Mrs. Harding will stay.
